

Do you have something to say about Western Australia's cadastral and geodetic future?

Here's your chance.

Landgate is establishing a Survey Networks Stakeholder Reference Group to:

- provide comment on, and suggest specific strategies for, advancing survey products and services for the benefit of Western Australia;
- refer and discuss matters of surveying importance or risk; and
- consider the impact of technological advances on surveying within Western Australia.

We are seeking a representative group from (but not limited to) Government, the survey industry, CORS operators and academia.

If all this interests you, we want you to apply. You should be able to demonstrate your link to cadastral and geodetic surveying in WA as well as your ability to:

- ⇒ seek out opportunities for collaborative approaches to cadastral and geodetic issues and problems, including the use of multi-disciplinary working groups where appropriate;
- ⇒ identify opportunities to reduce duplication of effort and minimise risk; and
- ⇒ encourage an open forum of views regarding the way Landgate, and industry in general, conducts business in the provision of geodetic services.
